Title: Tech's Rennick rewriting the record book

Publication Date: January 30, 2017

Summary: Junior Micayla Rennick, a former ARC student, has made an impact during her first season at Tennessee Tech. The standout cross country runner, who also competes on the Tech track and field team, set new standards in the fall with the cross country team and has now maintained that pace early in the track season.

After an injury which required surgery, she began training with her uncle, who was an elite runner in his own right, and he prepared her to give college another try. Rennick attended American River Community College in Sacramento where she met coach Michael Reid.

“Coach Reid told me there’s a coach that wants to talk with me and how ‘this man can get you running on the level you want to run on,’” Rennick explained. “What’s when I met coach Wayne Angel. He has such a huge resume, everything he’s done in his career as a runner and as a coach.”
